

Teacher conduct and performance 2008- 2023

The NSW Department of Education employees more than 92,000 permanent, temporary and casual teachers. The number of staff who have taken part in improvement programs or been the subject of disciplinary action or convicted of a serious offence represents a small proportion of NSW public school teachers.

The department acts quickly to investigate all allegations of teacher misconduct including allegations of sexual misconduct.

Disciplinary or remedial action, which may include dismissal, is taken against a teacher where an investigation finds they have engaged in misconduct or remain unsatisfactory following participation in an improvement program.

Teacher Underperformance

The department has support structures and formal procedures for managing underperforming teachers.

Teachers identified with performance concerns are provided support through a range of strategies targeted to the specific areas of concern. Early intervention has resulted in one-third of teachers demonstrating improvement without the need to be progressed to a formal improvement program.

Where a teacher does not demonstrate sufficient improvement in their performance, an improvement program is implemented.

In 2023, 103 teachers, including executive teachers and principals, commenced an improvement program.

Teachers dismissed

Between 1 January 2008 to 31 December 2023, 1254 teachers were dismissed from their teaching positions for proven allegations of misconduct or failing an improvement program (a table setting out the reasons for dismissal appears below).

Teacher convictions

Any teacher who is charged with a serious criminal offence must report this to their manager.

The department monitors matters where employees, including teachers, are charged with serious criminal offences, manages risk, and takes appropriate disciplinary or remedial action when court or police action is completed.

A number of teachers have been convicted of serious criminal matters since 2008 as detailed in the table below.
